

The associated policy and procedure refer to the offence of sexual assault to align with the current offence contained in the Criminal Code. The word “rape” is no longer used though meaning in Canada, the term “rape” is still commonly used.

Myth	Fact
It wasn't rape, so it wasn't sexual violence	Sexual assault and sexual violence encompass a broad range of unwanted sexual activity. Any unwanted sexual contact is considered to be sexual violence. A survivor can be severely affected by all forms of sexual violence, including unwanted fondling, rubbing, kissing, or other sexual acts. Many forms of sexual violence involve no physical contact, such as stalking or distributing intimate visual recordings. All of these acts are serious and can be damaging.
Sexual assault can't happen to me or anyone I know.	Sexual assault can and does happen to anyone. People of all socio-economic and ethnic backgrounds are survivors of sexual assault, but the vast majority of sexual assaults happen to women and girls. Young women, Indigenous women and women with disabilities are at greater risk of experiencing sexual assault.
Sexual assault is most often committed by strangers.	Someone known to the survivor, including acquaintances, dating partners, and common-law or married partners, commit approximately 75 percent of sexual assaults.
Sexual assault is most likely to happen outside in dark, dangerous places.	The majority of sexual assaults occur in private spaces like a residence or private home.

If an individual doesn't report to the police, it wasn't sexual assault.	Just because a survivor doesn't report the assault, it does not mean it didn't happen. Fewer than one in ten survivors report the crime to the police.
It's not a big deal to have sex with someone while they are drunk, stoned or passed out.	If a person is unconscious or incapable of consenting due to the use of alcohol or drugs, they cannot legally give consent. Without consent, it is sexual assault.
If the person chose to drink or use drugs, then it isn't considered sexual assault.	This is a prominent misconception about sexual assault. No one can consent while drunk or incapacitated.
If the survivor didn't scream or fight back, it probably wasn't sexual assault. If the Survivor does not fight back, the sexual assault is their fault.	When an individual is sexual assaulted, they may become paralyzed with fear and be unable to fight back. The person may be fearful that if they struggle, the perpetrator will become more violent.
If you didn't say no, it must be your fault.	People who commit sexual assault/abuse are trying to gain power and control over their survivor. They want to make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for their survivor to say no. A person does not need to actually say the word "no" to make it clear that they did not want to participate. The focus on consent is on hearing a "yes".
If the person isn't crying or visibly upset, it probably wasn't a serious sexual assault.	Every person responds to the trauma of sexual assault differently. They may cry or may be calm. They may be silent or very angry. Their behaviour is not an indicator of their experience. It is important not to judge a person) by how they respond to the assault.

If someone does not have obvious physical injuries, like cuts or bruises, they probably were not sexually assaulted.	Lack of physical injury does not mean that a person wasn't sexual assaulted. An offender may use threats, weapons, or other coercive actions that do not leave physical marks. The person may have been unconscious or been otherwise incapacitated.
If it really happened, the survivor would be able to easily recount all the facts in the proper order.	Shock, fear, embarrassment, and distress can all impair memory. Many survivors attempt to minimize or forget the details of the assault as a way of coping with the trauma. Memory loss is common when alcohol and/or drugs are involved.
Individuals lie and make up stories about being sexual assaulted; and most reports of sexual assault turn out to be false.	According to Statistics Canada, fewer than one in ten sexual assault survivors report the crime to the police. Approximately two percent of sexual assault reports are false. The number of false reports of sexual assault is very low. Sexual assault carries such a stigma that many people prefer not to report.
Persons with disabilities don't get sexual assaulted.	Individuals with disabilities are at a high risk of experiencing sexual violence or assault. Those who live with activity limitations are over two times more likely to be survivors of sexual assault than those who are able-bodied.

A spouse or significant other cannot sexually assault their partner.

Sexual assault can occur in a married or other intimate partner relationship. The truth is that it occurs ANY TIME there is not consent for sexual activity of any kind. Being in a relationship does not exclude the possibility of, or justify sexual assault. A person has the

People who are sexually assaulted “ask for it” by their provocative behaviour or dress.	This statement could not be more hurtful or wrong. Nobody deserves to be sexually assaulted. Someone has deliberately chosen to be violent toward someone else; to not get consent. Nobody asks to be assaulted, EVER. No mode of dress, no amount of alcohol or drugs ingested, no matter what the relationship is between the survivor and the perpetrator or what the survivor’s occupation is, sexual assault is always wrong.
Sexual assault only happens to women.	Not true. The majority of sexual assaults are committed against women by men, but people of all genders, from all backgrounds have been and can be assaulted.
Sexual abuse of males is rare.	According to Statistics Canada, six percent of males 15 or older reported that they had experienced sexual victimization. Sexual assault/abuse occurs in every economic, ethnic, age and social group.
If you got aroused or got an erection or ejaculated, you must have enjoyed it.	It is normal for your body to react to physical stimulation. Just because you became physically aroused, does not mean that you liked it, wanted it, or consented in any way. If you experienced some physical pleasure, this does not take away the fact that sexual abuse happened, or the effects or feelings of abuse.
